Since the sit-in began, Both President Fitzer and Provost Richard Lyman have made it clear that the University intends to make every effort to use its own internal judicial processes in an attempt to end this disruption. These processes have been formally sanctioned by both students and faculty.

As Provost Lyman told Young Americans for Freedom yesterday, the results of using off-campus methods to end disorder elsewhere have not been especially happy or encouraging.

"This ~~is not to say~~ is not to say that the use of civil authority is not ever necessary," Lyman said. "Sometimes it is."
