

NATIONAL WORK STOPPAGE COMMITTEE

Here's a summary of the steps we're taking at Stanford to lay the local ground work for a national work stoppage. Undoubtedly you can plan yourselves a hell of a lot better in your own locales, but maybe this can help at first.

Enclosed are:

- 1) The concept and a statement of our goals
- 2) Committee structure outline
- 3) Our communications network, interstate
- 4) List of the types of factories we've leafletted
- 5) List of the types of labor bodies we've contacted
- 6) Sample leaflets

We think you'll find this stuff eats up a lot of people's time fast, so put out a loud call. We think you'll also find that the minute you stick your noses into the union and factory scene, the excitement grows logarithmically.

There are a hell of a lot of people upset with Nixon. More than you or we or they ever dreamed. Most of 'em think they're pretty much alone. Everybody thinks the other guy is that "Great Silent Majority" Nixon's always talking about -- but when you get their heads together, they'll find that they're NOT alone. The huge silent majority doesn't exist any more. Now's the time to gey them together. Plant the concept that they have it in their power to STOP WORK if the situation and their consciences demand it. That is their ultimate political tool. It may never be needed, but the organization for such a national work stoppage must be laid now. And that's what this is all about.

Don't forget... KEEP IN TOUCH EACH EVENING ... We've got to work together.
