

PAUSE FOR PEACE

We are students, teachers and workers from Stanford University. Like almost everybody else, we've had enough of a war fought by the workers and paid for by the workers in order to line the pockets of the fat cats who rule the country. So we are on strike together with our brothers and sisters in over 300 colleges and universities across the country. Six of our brothers and sisters are already dead in Ohio.

It is easy for us to strike, but we know that a college strike will not end the war. American working people are the only ones who can stop the war. They have in their power one ultimate political tool, A NATIONAL WORK STOPPAGE. If events in Southeast Asia continue to escalate and if the administration refuses to respond to public pleas for rational control, such a drastic action may be necessary. We know that even if you talk openly about this, you risk losing your jobs. But the only way that this war can be ended is if you say NO to the rich politicians, businessmen, and generals.

Tell them you will not work for the war machine!

The time to organize is NOW! Bring our brothers home!
