

A Program For Stanford

We ask the Academic Senate to pass the following resolutions:

1. This University recognizes the extraordinary national state of affairs created by the President's decision to invade Cambodia. To make our recognition of this state of affairs concrete and to meet the responsibilities of the intellectual community, we recommend the following special actions:

(a) The University shall officially reschedule all classes, freeing the hours between 12 and 5 p.m. each day. These hours shall be devoted to activities dealing with the

any student may receive an incomplete in any course this spring quarter without individual justification. Further, the University rule that a student may elect to take at most one course pass/fail shall be suspended for this quarter.

(c) The Senate recommends that classes shall resume on Wednesday, May 13, on a strictly voluntary basis for the remainder of this term. The decision to attend shall be an individual student decision.

(a) The University shall officially reschedule all classes, freeing the hours between 12 and 5 p.m. each day. These hours shall be devoted to activities dealing with the present national crisis and the University's role in it. We urge faculty and students to involve the broader community in discussion and to hold special seminars to find and offer solutions to these problems. It is the consensus of the Senate that the holding of continued discussions is an essential part of our reponse to the national crisis.

(b) The Senate recommends to the faculty that

ly voluntary basis for the remainder of this term. The decision to attend shall be an individual student decision.

(d) Individual faculty members who cannot in good conscience continue their classes for the remainder of this term shall be granted the right to discontinue their classes, but they are strongly urged to make one of the following two arrangements. Either the class shall be taken on a voluntary basis by another member of the department, or individual arrangements shall be made for students desiring to complete the course.

2. The Senate accepts the recommendation of the Academic Council and terminates academic credit for ROTC courses effective the end of this spring term. In addition, the Academic Senate strongly recommends to the Board of Trustees that ROTC be given a voluntary status comparable to that of other groups on campus, ranging from the Young Republicans to SDS. This means, in particular, that all special contractual relations between the University and ROTC will be terminated by August 31, 1970.
