294 arrested in Old Union sit-in

And away we go

Robert Vargas is led away from the Old Union following his arrest in conjunction with a protest which finally resulted in 294 arrests. The demonstrators were protesting the University's position on a proxy resolution concerning investments in companies which have operations in South Africa.

Student addresses trustee committee

In an unprecedented action, the Board of Trustees Committee on Investments allowed a student to present his views before the committee in San Francisco yesterday.

After condemning the board's action, he said, an definition for "substantial consensus" has ever been set by the board. A board policy governing voting on proxy resolutions states that financial concerns should govern proxy voting, but the board has never defined what constitutes a "substantial consensus."

According to Herrington, the protesters were not read their rights under the Miranda ruling because the police did not intend to question them. This

As two policemen wearing helmets and carrying guns and riot batons on their belts grabbed each of rally organizer Chris Cileman's arms, he said:

"The arrests have begun, I love you all.

The people of South Africa will be free."

ASSU Council of Presidents Anne Henkels and Glenn Jordan were also among those arrested.

Personnel in Old Union interviewed by the Daily said the sit-in did not interfere with the normal flow of business. The protesters were careful to insure access by clearing aisles.

At 1:15 p.m., a statement of support for the protesters was read from 1976 Democratic Congressional candidate David Harris. It was to be the first of several expressions of support that arrived yesterday.

Statements of support came from student groups at San Jose State University, UC-Davis, UC-Berkeley, Macalester College in Minnesota and from Tom Hayden and the Commission on Social Justice of the Archdiocese of San Francisco.

At 2:30 p.m., after a meeting between the protesters' negotiation committee and Vice President for Public Affairs Robert Rosenzweig, the demonstrators first learned they might face arrest.

Ready to arrest

Rosenzweig replied in the affirmative when asked by the committee if the University was ready to arrest the demonstrators.

"It is not a prospect we look forward to with any pleasure," he said.

"The policy of the University is to bring sit-ins to a close as quickly as possible as the circumstances allow," he said.

Discussion about whether to sit-in illegally after the 5 p.m. closing time for the building began in earnest after the negotiation committee made their report.

After a half hour of discussion, the students voted to remain inside the building.

At the same time, the protesters were informed the doors would be closed at 5 p.m. and people would be arrested if

In an unprecedented action, the Board of Trustees Committee on Investments allowed a student to present his views before the committee in San Francisco yesterday.

Yet the committee later refused to recommend reversal of the board's decision last month to abstain on a Ford Motor Co. shareholder resolution calling for Ford to withdraw its investment from South Africa.

A reversal of the decision was one of four demands put forth by junior Kim McCall on behalf of the Stanford Committee for a Responsible Investment Policy (SCRIP).

The committee, however, accepted two other protester demands and left the door open to additional action on the fourth.

The committee broke with tradition and heard a presentation from SCRIP member McCall for nearly 30 minutes at the request of Lawrence Cref, student member of the trustee committee.

Later, President Richard Lyman announced the committee had decided not to ask the full board to reverse its Ford decision when it meets today.

The committee did suggest publication of letters written to corporations explaining the University's abstention and of responses from those corporations.

Lyman said the board would meet SCRIP's demand to prepare a report describing costs and benefits which would result from University divestment of its shares in corporations operating in South Africa.

He said an Oct. 1 target date for completion of the report has been set, and work would start immediately on it.

Patty Hearst granted five years probation

Los Angeles (AP) — Patricia Hearst, who admitted her part in a wild shooting and robbery, was placed on five years probation yesterday by a judge who expressed compassion for her parents.

The prosecution endorsed the light sentence, saying the heiress represented no threat to society and suggesting that authorities may have dealt too harshly with her in the past in avoid criticism that her wealth bought her special treatment.

Hearst, 23, is currently free on bail from a seven-year sentence for a San Francisco bank robbery and could return to serve at least 14 more months if her appeal is rejected.

Hearst, who faced the possibility of 15½ years to life in prison on her plea of no contest, was silent and blank-faced as Superior Court Judge E. Talbot Callister announced his decision for leniency.

After the sentencing the details of a probation report were released.

In an unexpected move, the prosecu-

The committee also agreed to have committee members meet with SCRIP representatives within the next few weeks to discuss investment issues. Lyman said he and two other investment Committee members would meet with a small number of SCRIP members.

Action on a fourth demand calling for abolition of the Commission on Investment Responsibility (CIR) and creation of a new commission "with real power" was deferred because of what Lyman termed "sufficient clarity" as to protester objections to CIR now and recommendations for change.

He said the issue was far from dead, however, and proposed it be taken up when SCRIP and the trustees meet. Creation of a commission with "real power" would not happen, Lyman added, because trustees, not an outside body, must manage finances and endowment of the University.

Overall, six SCRIP members went to San Francisco for the meeting. Simultaneously over 500 students sat-in at the Old Union first floor here.

McCall said he was very happy with the committee action, calling his reception "very courteous."

"I feel that considering the positions that the trustees are coming from, today's activities have been productive and we will have laid the foundation for future progress," he said.

Before the committee meeting began, faculty committee member Economics Prof. George Bach discussed the proxy resolution issue with SCRIP members. Following the announcement of the decision, Board President Dr. Peter Bing discussed the board position at length with the group.

tion joined with the defense in recommending immediate probation for Hearst.

In addition, Callister struck from the court record two attached counts of firearms use admitted by Hearst.

The judge said he considered her willingness to testify against others in granting probation. He also adopted a position that Hearst is no longer a threat to society.

Callister, a criminal judge for seven years, said this was the most difficult decision he had ever been asked to make.

Among the factors which influenced him, he said, was that "the defendant was kidnapped and subject to 57 days of horrible torture."

Should the Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reject Hearst's petition, she would have to spend 14 months more in jail before being eligible for probation. Al Johnson, Hearst's attorney, said he would appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

After the sentencing the details of a probation report were released.

outred by the pace of events.

Concerning the board action he said no definition for "substantial consensus" has ever been set by the board. A board policy governing voting on proxy resolutions states that financial concerns should govern proxy vote decisions. When a "substantial consensus" of the community feels strongly on an issue, that consideration should also enter into the decision, Bing said.

Bing said a definition of the "substantial consensus" should be discussed when trustees meet with SCRIP. He said there was "high student interest, but evidence is not there for consensus."

He said 75 faculty of 1,200 does not demonstrate a consensus and there has been no input from alumnus on this matter. He said it was debatable whether 3500 students is a consensus.

Bing said he was "sure" the board would consider putting forth its own shareholder resolution within the next year.

Those who refused to sign the citation were taken to Elmwood Rehabilitation Facility in Milpitas. Demonstrators who were arrested in the late evening were taken directly to Elmwood, bypassing the pre-processing step. Most protesters were released on their own recognizance.

According to Herrington, the protesters were not read their rights under the Miranda ruling because the police did not intend to question them. "This thing was completely cut and dried," Herrington said.

Re-entry

Later in the evening, as arrests continued, a few students climbed through second and third story windows in order to be arrested along with those inside.

At least one student was arrested twice. It is unlikely reporters will be released on their own recognizance according to Robert Breyers, director of news and publications.

The incident marks the largest number of students arrested in the University's history, according to Herrington. It is also the largest mass arrest of students here.

Herrington said the overtime for the police would cost the University and

At the same time, the protesters were informed the doors would be closed at 5 p.m. and people would be arrested at 6 p.m. Anyone who wanted to would be allowed to leave before 6 p.m., but no one else would be allowed entrance to the building.

At 5:20 Coleman told the protesters that Lyman had just informed him there was "zero possibility" that the Ford proxy would be reconsidered at the Tuesday meeting.

Just after 6 David Harris made an unscheduled personal appearance and statement of support.

"The University needs to be taught that their money has some morals," he said.

Rosenzweig, accompanied by Herrington and two other officers, entered at 6:10. After 20 minutes of frequently chaotic discussion the protesters voted

Carter meets on Mid-East conflict

Geneva, Switzerland — President Jimmy Carter had his third meeting with an Arab leader since taking office and said yesterday night that defense outposts for Israel beyond its legal boundaries are "a possibility" in a Middle East settlement.

Carter's 1½-hour meeting here with Syrian President Hafez Assad was "very informative and very friendly," said the president's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski.

The president, who is on his first trip abroad since his election, previously met in Washington with Jordan's King Hussein, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and outgoing Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in a search for ways to end the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Carter said after the Geneva session that Assad and the other leaders accept the concept of peacekeeping forces along Israel's borders with Arab countries.

A Syrian government source in Damascus said Assad also presented Carter yesterday with an Arab consensus plan for creation of a Palestinian state. But Adib Dandi, an adviser traveling with Assad, denied that such a proposal was made.

NATO deals with civil defense

London — President Jimmy Carter attends a North Atlantic alliance summit meeting today that will deal with a new topic — civil defense — as well as the usual concerns of military strength and coordination.

Joseph Luns, the Dutch secretary general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) told a news conference yesterday the Western allies have been "disagreeably impressed" by the Soviet Union's new program of building bomb shelters and otherwise bolstering defense of the populace against nuclear attack.

The West has lagged behind in civil defense preparations, Luns said.

Some NATO analysts find the Soviet civil defense program ominous. They speculate the Kremlin might be emboldened in its dealings with the West if it can guarantee a high survival rate for its civilian population in the event of nuclear attack.

Strong civil defense might encourage the Soviets to try a first nuclear strike, according to this theory.

Panama Canal talks resume

Washington — Panama Canal treaty talks are resuming here following sharp Panamanian threats and accusations that the United States is delaying a final accord.

Chief Panamanian negotiator Román Escobar Betancourt and his team arrived here Sunday for talks with U.S. negotiators Sol Linowitz and Ellsworth Bunker.

The new round of meetings will be held following threatening talk from Panamanian strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos.

In a Mexican news conference over the weekend, Torrijos was quoted as warning that if a new accord to replace the original canal treaty of 1903 is not completed, Americans in Panama will be "without water, without lights, without a canal and without gringos."

Keeping with what seems to be one of the most secretive operations in American foreign policy, U.S. officials had no comment. The Carter administration has steadfastly refused significant comment on any aspect of the treaty talks.

The new round of talks is the 15th extension of discussions stretching back to 1968.

Torrijos' major complaint deals with what he sees as President Carter's lack of commitment to completing the talks. "We have to have a definition from the government of Mr. Carter during this new round of negotiations," he said in Mexico.

When asked what he expects from the new talks, Torrijos expressed hope, but then voiced his threat about isolating the Canal Zone.

U.S. stance on Bakke urged

Washington — The government should come to the defense of a special school admissions program benefitting blacks and other minorities, the chairman of the Civil Service Commission said yesterday.

The Supreme Court has the program under review.

"The dominant route to equality has to be through education," commission chairman Alan Keith Campbell said at a news conference.

A special admissions policy at the UC-Davis Medical School was challenged by a white student who was turned down twice for entry to medical school. The student, Allan Bakke, claimed he would have been included in the class if the school's admissions policy was not maintained for minority students.

The California Supreme Court ruled last October that the policy is unconstitutional.

Driver's license fees to rise

Sacramento — Driver's license fees would rise from $3.25 to $10 as part of an overhaul of transportation planning and funding in California under a bill approved by the Assembly yesterday.

The measure by Assemblyman Walter Ingalls (D-Riverside), would greatly increase the legislature's role in deciding how much money the state spends to maintain and expand its huge highway network.

Critics of the "legislative budgeting" provision raised the specter of "pork barrel" — the age-old practice of trading political favors for state-funded projects in a legislator's district.

But the bill's progress so far is in part a sign of discontent with the highway planning practices of the Brown administration, accused by some critics of idlerly underutilizing resources and going too slow on construction.

Ingalls' bill also would increase basic auto registration fees from the current $11 by a dollar a year for three years, and raise truckers' weight fees by 40 per cent, or $40 million, over three years.

It was sent to the Senate on a 11-25 Assembly vote, but has a tough road ahead because of continued opposition from the trucking industry as well as Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s Transportation and Finance departments.

Today's weather

Mostly sunny and a little warmer today. Partly cloudy tonight and tomorrow. Lows in the 40s to low 50s. Highs today and tomorrow in the 60s to low 70s. Westerly winds 10 to 20 mph afternoons and evenings.

Immediately afterward, Rosenzweig, as an officer of the University, ordered the protesters out of the building. Herrington then told them they constituted an illegal assembly. The first arrests followed 10 minutes later.

Peter Bing, President of the Board of Trustees, addressed the protesters at 8 p.m.

Bing said "the whole question of consensus remains unclear" without any input from alumnus.

He admitted the trustees position "may be wrong," but that "it is our personal judgment that continued presence [of U.S. corporations in South Africa] will help."

"We [the Board] respect your opinion and that is why we are here."

Earlier outside Old Union, Bing told a group of students, "The trustees are not in a position to delve deeply or thoughtfully on proxy resolutions which are complex issues."

"We are simply dependent on the recommendation of the Commission on Investment Responsibility," he said.

At about 12:30 this morning, flyers were distributed calling for a rally at noon today at Columbae.
